The Million Dollar Mystery

By Harold MacGrath

[Copyright, 1914, By Harold MacGrath.] SEE THE PICTURE EVERY FRIDAY AT THE ODEON THEATER.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Stanley Hargrave, millionaire, after a miraculous escape from the den of the gang of brilliant thieves known as the Black Hundred, lives the life of a recluse for eighteen years. Hargrave one night enters a Broadway restaurant and there comes face to face with the gang's leader, Braine. After the meeting, during which neither man apparently recognizes the other, Hargrave hurries to his magnificent Riverside home and lays plans for making his escape from the country. He writes a letter to the girls' school in New Jersey where eighteen years before he had mysteriously left on the doorstep his baby daughter, Florence Gray. He also pays a visit to the harbor of a dread-vill aviator. Braine and members of his band surround Hargrave's home at night, but as they enter the house the watchers outside see a balloon leave the roof. The safe is found empty—the million which Hargrave was known to have drawn that day gone. The same one also announced the balloon had been punctured and dropped to the bottom of the sea. Florence arrives from the girls' school. Princess Olga, Braine's companion, visits and claims to be a relative. Two bogus detectives call, but their plot is foiled by Norton, a newspaper man. By bribing the captain of the Orient Norton lays a trap for Braine and his gang. Princess Olga also visits the Orient's captain and she easily falls into the reporter's snare. The plan proves a success. Braine's good luck and only hirelings fall into the hands of the police. After failing in their first attempt, the Black Hundred trap Florence. They ask her for money, but she escapes, again, following them. Norton and the countless call on Florence the next day, once more safe at home. The visitors having gone, Jones removes a section of the flooring, and from a cavity takes a box. Pursued by members of the Black Hundred who have been watching his movements, he rushes to the water front. A thrilling race in motor boat ensues. Jones drops the box into the sea and with his automatic sets fire to the pursuing boat.

In the great newspaper office there was a mighty racket. Midnight always means pandemonium in the city room of a metropolitan daily. Copy boys were rushing to and fro, messengers and printers with sticky galleys in their hands; reporters were banging away at their typewriters, and intermingling you could hear the ceaseless clickety-click from the telegraph room.

The managing editor came out of his office and approached the desk of the night city editor.

"Editorial page gone down?"

"Twenty minutes ago," said the night city editor.

"I wanted a stick on that Panama rumpus."

"Too late."

"Where's Jim Norton?"

"At the chamber of commerce banquet. The major is going to throw a bomb into the enemy's camp."

"Nothing on the Hargrave stuff?"

"No. Guess I'd better put that in the cubbyhole. He's dead."

"No will found yet?"

"Not a piece as big as a postage stamp."

"That will leave the girl in a tough place. No will, no birth certificate; and worst of all, no photograph of the old man himself. I don't see why Jim sidestepped this affair. He the only man in town who knew anything about Hargrave."

"He hasn't given it up; but he wants to cover it on his own time, turn the yarn over when he's got it, no false alarms."

"Ah! So that's the game?"

"Yes; and Jim is the sort every paper needs. When the time comes the story turns up, if there is one. Here he is now. Looks like an actor in the fourth act of a drama. Good looking chap, though."

Norton came in through the outer gates. He was in evening dress, top hat. A dead cigar dangled between his lips.

"How much do you want?" asked the night city editor.

"Column and a half."

"Off with your glad rags!"

"Anything good?" asked the managing editor.

"The lid has been jammed on tight. No wine in any restaurant after 1 o'clock. There'll be a roundup of every gunman in town."

"Good work. Go to it."

It was 1 o'clock when Norton turned in his last sheet of copy and started for home. Just outside the entrance to the building a man with a slouch hat drawn down over his eyes stopped forward.

"Mr. Norton?"

"Yes." Norton stepped back suspiciously.

The other chuckled, raised and lowered his hat swiftly.

"Good Lord!" murmured the reporter.

"Will you take a ride with me in a taxi?"

"All the way to Syracuse, if you say so. Well, I'll be tinkered damned!"

"No names, please!"

What took place in the taxicab was never generally known. But at 10 o'clock the next morning Norton surprised the elevator boy by going out. Norton proceeded downtown to the National bank, where he deposited $5,000 in bills of large denominations. The teller had some difficulty in counting them. They stuck together and retained the sudden appearance of money recently submerged in water.

CAMPAIGN IS OPENED AGAINST RUSSELLISM

Speaker at Bible Conference Pronounces Issues a Most Dangerous Heresy.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Aug 11.—A crusade against the teachings of Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn, author of the system known as Millennial Dawn, and the head of the International Bible Students' Association, has been inaugurated at the Mountain Lake Bible Conference.

Following an address by the Rev. James H. Gray, D. D., dean of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, in which he denounced the teachings of Russell as the most dangerous form of heresy, the Rev. Charles W. Baldwin, president of the Mountain Lake Park Association, called for subscriptions for the purchase of books in reply to Russellism which are to be distributed on the grounds and in surrounding towns. About 150 persons agreed by rising to pay for one or more copies which are to be distributed.

Dr. Gray preached on the subject of the duty of Christ. He charged Pastor Russell with denying the doctrine of the duty of Christ and other doctrines believed by evangelical Christians.

"Russellism is such a serious heresy," Dr. Gray said, "not only because of its denial of the true character of Christ, but because it is so subtle and because it deceives some of the most devout Christians. Its teachers are so suave, simple, child-like and bland that its dangerous character is not seen at first. Christians ought to be warned against it as they would against any other rank heresy." Other speakers of the day were Dr. M. H. Lyon, Dr. Percival Campbell Morgan and Dr. Sol C. Dickey.

Today the Rev. F. B. Meyer, of London, Eng., and the Rev. Joby McNeill, of Toronto, Can., arrived at the Park and will remain during the rest of the conference, speaking every day.

CONTESTANT

Writes Her Appreciation of the Contest and Thanks for the Prize Awarded Her.

Mrs. Aloysius Coll, one of the successful contestants in the Telegram's Summer Pastime contest, writes her appreciation of the contest and the prize received by her as follows: Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11, 1914. Editors of the Telegram, Clarksburg, W. Va.

My Dear Editors:— I am sending you this word of thanks for the award in gold for my success in the Summer Pastime contest. I feel that the Telegram deserves credit for the speed with which the lists were checked and verified, and that the judges must have had labor indeed to go through these lists in the heat of the last ten days, so that the winners owe these men a debt of gratitude.

I might add, for your own satisfaction, that I came close to being out of the contest altogether, for the reason that although I marked down "Westmoreland," in my first choice of answers to the picture rebuses, inadvertently I went ahead and made up a list of words on

"Mathewson" and only then noticed my error and in the last five days preceding the 29th made the second list sent in. The prize is one little board of gold that will not go to Europe. With best wishes for the continued success of the Telegram, I am

Faithfully yours, MRS. ALOYSIUS COLL.

DOCTOR BURNED

In Fire Caused by Exploding Alcohol, Which Destroys Building at Brown.

The loss caused by the fire Sunday night at Brown destroyed the L. S. Whiteman building in which Dr. Russell Swiger and Justice D. W. Kemper had offices, is estimated at $3,000. It was caused by the explosion of a jug of alcohol ignited from a match with which Dr. Swiger was trying to light a gas jet in his office. He was painfully but not seriously burned by the burning fluid.

The structure was a one-story frame affair containing three office rooms. Dr. Swiger lost a great deal of his equipment and books, while Justice Kemper's dockets, papers and books were destroyed.
