The New Veils Damage Both Eyesight and Complexion—Why the Large Figured Veils are Harmful to the Complexion—Do Not Adopt Every New Style Blindly—Fasteners Neater Than Hooks and Eyes—If You are Surprised in Tears—Simple Way to Test Ventilation.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF FASHION.

It seems that the "craze" of fashion exists upon bringing forth new styles of face veils, apparently designed with a view to doing the greatest possible harm to the complexion of women. I have written before of that style of face veil which has dots attached to it at regular intervals, or squares, and of the damage done to eyesight by these dots. And now a new veil has become the vogue. It is covered with solid figures of birds, of dragons, and what-nots. An open space is left at the bridge of the nose.

Unless a veil is worn for protection it should not be worn at all. There is nothing beautifying about a veil. But consider what will be the result of wearing veils which are covered with solid worked figures of considerable size. The face will be exposed to wind or cold air only where the mesh covers it. The figures, being solid, will afford the protection of clothing to the skin. The skin will, therefore, become extremely tender where protected by the large figures, and will harden to the rigors of wind and weather where there are no figures.

To subject the face to the weather with such lack of equity will, of course, do much harm. The covering afforded by the large figures at the bridge of the nose, or worked into the mesh, will render the skin beneath it extremely sensitive, and, unless great care is taken, will result in much harm to the complexion.

As to the novelty veil's enhancement of beauty, I fail to see where a large figure of a bird, a beast, or a reptile, worn against the face, can be of any value. Rather, it gives the wearer a freakish appearance, and is but a poor reflection of the intelligence of the woman who caters to the vogue, notwithstanding the cost.

Remember: Beauty does not consist in blindly adopting every novelty style or smart effect inflicted upon the public by fashion makers.

NOTES AND NOTIONS.

A Deal of Daintiness in Fastenings.

The fastidiously dainty woman may always be distinguished from the constitutionally slovenly one by the fastenings of dress details. Sooner or later the "sloppy" one will reveal her true instinct and will be caught with a safety-pin doing duty for the stitch-in-time; whereas the truly dainty woman always takes time to fasten everything trimly and to see that loosened fastenings are repaired before the emergency of hurried dress-arives. Neater than small pins are the fastenings of thin stock collars are small snap buttons; and these fasteners give a flatter, nicer closing than even the smallest of hooks and eyes. These handy fasteners may also be used for keeping mourning bands on long sleeves or for catching back wide, turned-back cuffs of soft material that might otherwise droop limply and untidily from the sleeve.

If You are Surprised in Tears.

If your dearest enemy happens to call while you are in the midst of a doleful crying spell, and you know that she will insist on coming right upstairs if informed that you are ill; don't despair. Provided you have been forewarned and have prepared for such an emergency, all traces of the crying spell may be removed in ten minutes—while she supposes you are dressing. Bathe the eyes in hot boric acid water, and take a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in water. The latter will steady the nerves and the boric acid will take all inflammation from the eyes. This will take the first five minutes. Now pour a little liquid menthol in steaming water. Wrap a bath towel over the head and basin and take in long breaths through the nose. In a moment or two the voice will be clear and free from the tell-tale huskiness of tears. Last of all apply talcum to the face, smooth the hair. Run downstairs with a laughing greeting—and sit with your back to the window as you converse with the guest.

How to Test Ventilation.

Here is a simple way to tell whether your room is properly ventilated or not. Place a wide-necked bottle of water, into which has been placed an ounce of lime water, in the room, allowing it to remain uncovered overnight. If the lime water is milky in the morning the ventilation is bad. If the lime water becomes milky on your covering the bottle mouth with your hand and shaking the vessel, the ventilation is not sufficiently good. When the lime water remains clear, the air of the room is considered clear and pure.

A. C. MATHESON NAMED HEAD OF SCHOOLS OF UTAH

A. C. Matheson is the new superintendent of public instruction, succeeding the late A. C. Nelson. He was appointed by Governor Spry at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon out of a field of no less than a dozen receptive candidates, including a number of the most prominent educators in the state.

For ten years Mr. Matheson has been in the office of the superintendent of public instruction, acting as secretary to Mr. Nelson. In that capacity he has become thoroughly acquainted with the work and duties of the office.

Mr. Matheson was called to the governor's office late yesterday afternoon and tendered the position. After a conference with the governor he accepted. Mr. Matheson said it would be his aim to follow as closely as possible in the footsteps of Mr. Nelson.

The appointment is effective immediately. It will be in force until a year from now, or until a successor is elected at the next regular election, qualifies.

A. C. Matheson, the new state superintendent of public instruction, was born in Dundee, Scotland, in 1870. When 8 years of age he came with his parents to Parowan, Utah, and as a boy worked on the farm and at the carpenter's trade.

His first educational work was done as a teacher in the Parowan public schools, 1890-92. He then attended the Brigham Young college at Logan, from which he received a diploma, and later the University of Utah, by which he was graduated in 1895.

After leaving the University of Utah, Mr. Matheson again taught school until, in 1899, he became assistant to the late A. C. Nelson, state superintendent of public instruction. He has been in that office almost continuously during the last thirteen years.

In regard to future policies, Mr. Matheson said last night:

"Mr. Nelson's views and mine, on educational matters, were almost identical in every respect. Having been in his office for so long a time I am familiar with his proposed future line of work, and I shall endeavor as nearly as possible to carry out his policies. There was only one A. C. Nelson, and his work was the result of a wonderful personality and years of experience.

"Just what I expect to do I prefer to not make known at present, but rather let the work speak for itself. The press of Utah has always lent every possible aid in educational matters, and I am not afraid to trust it to make known the results of my efforts. During the N. E. A. convention here last year there was much comment upon the co-operation of the press and the educators in Utah, and it was declared many times that this co-operation was not equaled in any other part of the country.

"When questioned as to his probable successor as assistant, Mr. Matheson declared that while he had thought of the matter, the appointment had not yet been given any serious consideration.

AGED STATESMAN WILL RETIRE

Joseph Chamberlain Announces Intention to End 37-year Service in Parliament.

YOUNGER MAN NEEDED

Eight Years Since Former Gladstone Cabinet Member Spoke in House.

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 7.—Joseph Chamberlain, the venerable British statesman, had decided to retire from parliament at the next general election. He has served continuously as a member of the House of Commons since 1876, all this time representing West Birmingham.

In a letter addressed today to the president of the Unionist association of Birmingham, Mr. Chamberlain says:

"Before leaving for the south of France, I think I ought to communicate to you the decision at which I have arrived to retire from parliament at the next general election. I have not come to this decision without many regrets at the severance of a connection which has already lasted over thirty-seven years, and has been marked on the part of my constituents, by ever-growing confidence and support.

"But I cannot hope again to do my work in parliament and I feel that our city and the constituency of West Birmingham needs the service of a younger man who will take an active part in the parliamentary struggle and help to maintain the supremacy of the Unionist cause in Birmingham."

Leaves for South.

Mr. Chamberlain leaves Highbury, his residence at Birmingham, next week for London. After passing a few days there, he will proceed to his usual winter visit to the south of France.

There has been no change for the worse in Mr. Chamberlain's health recently. It is, however, nearly eight years since he spoke in the House of Commons, and nearly three years since he appeared there, and then only for a few minutes at the opening of the session of 1911, when he was assisted into the house in order that he might take the oath.

Former Cabinet Member.

Joseph Chamberlain, at the outset of his political career was a radical. He served under the late William Ewart Gladstone in several cabinets as president of the board of trade and president of the local government board. He became a Unionist at the time of the break in the Liberal party over home rule for Ireland, and he was secretary of state for the colonies at the time of the Boer war. He is now 87 years old.

Mr. Chamberlain has been married three times, his third wife to whom he was married in 1888, being Mary Endicott, only daughter of the late W. C. Endicott, secretary of war during President Cleveland's administration. Mr. Chamberlain was the chief commissioner for the settlement of the North American fisheries dispute in 1887.

It is generally expected that Neville Chamberlain, a younger son of the retiring statesman, will become Unionist candidate for West Birmingham in succession to his father.

STEEL PROMOTER MAY BE A FRAUD

Salt Lake, Jan. 7.—The Herald says:

C. W. French, erstwhile promoter of the Pacific steel company, capitalized at $100,000,000, who came to Salt Lake last November in his private car Convoy, is being sought by the Hotel Utah and two business men of Salt Lake to make good two drafts calling for a total of $2500, which he had cashed at the hotel before he departed for southern California. Although numerous telegrams have been sent to Mr. French asking him to care for the returned drafts, his only answers have been promises.

One draft for $1000 was drawn upon J. F. Clark of Los Angeles. This draft was indorsed by two Salt Lake business men. The second draft was drawn upon D. Von Cramer of Vancouver, B. C., and was returned with the notation "Drawee out of the city."

Dunkerton detectives, it is understood, have been keeping Mr. French under surveillance in San Diego and Los Angeles.

The whole matter was placed in the hands of County Attorney I. E. Willey, but as prosecution was desired only upon the unsecured draft drawn upon Mr. Von Cramer, legal technicalities have interfered and the complaint will not be issued at this time.

Attorneys for the Hotel Utah have attempted in vain to procure the money, and as a last resort the matter was placed in the hands of the authorities.

It was found that a decision of the supreme court of Utah prohibits the introduction into court of protested drafts as evidence and holds that the person upon whom they are drawn must appear in court and state that he refused payment. Mr. Von Cramer was telegraphed three times, the county attorney says, and refused to come to Salt Lake to appear against French. Under the circumstances, County Attorney Willey announced that he could not proceed further in the case.

George O. Helf, manager of the Hotel Utah, refused to discuss the details of the matter, but admits that "there were irregularities in the accounts of the party." French drew other drafts while he was at the hotel, but these were paid. The draft for $1000 upon J. F. Clark of Los Angeles was presented to O. A. Helf, father of George O. Helf, and assistant manager of the hotel. Mr. Helf placed his "O. K." upon the paper and the cash was given to French. It is said that the greater part of the $1000 was used in paying the large hotel bill, which had been contracted by the steel promoting party while they were in Salt Lake. Prior to the draft being cashed two Salt Lake business men indorsed it for Mr. French. They have been notified that they will be expected to make good the $1000.

The second draft was drawn upon Vancouver and called for $1500. Geo. O. Helf, manager of the hotel, handled this draft personally. It is said that the greater part of the $1500 was used to pay parking charges upon French's private car Convoy in the Denver & Rio Grande yards.

As it takes seven or eight days for drafts drawn upon Los Angeles and Vancouver to pass through the clearing house associations and banks in the different cities, Mr. French was outside the state when the Hotel Utah was notified that payment had been refused.

CONSUMPTION AND THE GOSPEL

Religion and the White Plague.

Sin's Relationship to Sickness and Death—"The Wages of Sin is Death." Man's Battle Against the Curse a Losing One—"In God is Thy Help." The Result Will Be Glorious.

Pastor Russell, speaking from the platform of the new City Temple to a crowded house, announced his text from Leviticus 26:16: "I will even appoint over you terror, consumption, and the burning plague, that shall consume [before] the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart." His topic was chosen in harmony with the movement against consumption, the white plague, which he declared is annually sweeping more millions into the grave than are all the world's wars.

While the Pastor's commission is to preach the Gospel, nevertheless, since it is the Divine arrangement for recovery from sin and death, he considered it eminently proper to call attention to the ravages of the white plague as part of sin's penalty. He would not be understood as meaning that all consumptives are especially sinners; for some of God's most saintly people have died of consumption and other ailments. The Redeemer Himself died of a ruptured heart, a disease not unknown to medical practice.

The speaker declared that much confusion prevails amongst Christians respecting sickness and health. True, we have the Bible instruction that sickness is a part of the death penalty inherited from our first parents on account of their disobedience. Yet it seems natural to think that after we have turned from sin and have consecrated our lives to God, He would restore us fully to everlasting life and happy conditions. When we find that some of God's best people, including the Saviors, the Apostles and the Prophets, have suffered, even unto death, and that none are immune from this penalty, a perplexity arises that only the Bible sets straight.
