TOBACCO HABIT EASILY CONQUERED

A well-known New Yorker who has had wide experience, has written book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily banished in three days without any return of the craving.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. No more of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette or chewing tobacco to pacify the morbid desire. The author, Edw. J. Woods, 634 Sixth Ave., 743 H New York City, will send his book free on application, to anyone who writes to him.

CROSSING THE RED SEA

Exodus 14:19-31—August 17—"Before they call, I will answer."—Isaiah 65:24. The Bible story of Israel's miraculous crossing of the Red Sea, which later overwhelmed the Egyptian army, has long been questioned by agnostics, who also question the large number ascribed to the Israelites—600,000 men, implying a total of 2,000,000 or more.

Prof. Flinders Petrie calls attention to the fact that the Hebrew word alaf is used in the Scriptures sometimes to signify a group, families, or tents, very much in the same way that we use the word regiment as signifying a group of a thousand men, yet often far less in number, especially after a battle.

Thus reckoned, the entire host of the Israelites who left Egypt—men, women and children—might be estimated at about 30,000. Even this was a goodly host to be the descendants of Jacob in but little more than two centuries.

But the word of the Lord through Moses was that the people should be of good courage, and that soon they would see Jehovah God bring deliverance from their troubles and the wind began to blow from the north, and gradually the waters receded southward, uncovering a ledge and sand bar, upon which the Israelites crossed to the other side.

The be-fogged Egyptians followed, possibly without realizing that they were on land usually covered by water. As they progressed into the mist sand, the Egyptians experienced fresh difficulties. Chariot wheels became clogged, horses went more slowly, they balked, wheels broke, etc., until the Egyptians began to reason the matter out and decided that in the figurative language of that time God had looked upon their wicked eye out of the pillar of cloud.

Possibly there was some manifestation, such as a lightning flash. They concluded to give up the chase. Meantime, the direction of the wind had changed, and it was now coming from the south. Hence they could extricate themselves, the water was upon them, and they were soon overwhelmed.

There is nothing in this account to stagger faith. United States Government Reports show that the waters of Lake Erie have varied as much as five feet in Toledo, by reason of change of wind, and that an equal change of wind, what has staggered our faith in the past was the statement that the sea constituted a wall on either side of the Israelites as they passed over. But the word wall in its broadest sense signifies barrier.

Thus we might say that the United States has the Atlantic Ocean as a protective wall on one side and the Pacific Ocean on the other. If the Bible is interpreted with a little common sense, is entirely reasonable. More and more Bible students are learning not only of its reasonableness, but also of its wealth of riches of knowledge and wisdom from on High.

The Angel of the Lord, the cloudy pillar, or mist, which gave light to the Israelites at night, but darkness to the Egyptians, is spoken of as being the Angel of the Lord, or as though the Angel of the Lord were in it. We are to bear in mind the broad meaning of the word angel. It signifies messenger. Generally spirit beings are Jehovah's messengers. Sometimes, however, human beings are His messengers; as, for instance, the Apostle declares that all of God's consecrated people are God's ambassadors, ministers, servants.

But the word angel is Scripturally used in a still broader sense—as signifying the exercise of Divine Power in connection with human affairs. Thus the trustee under the will, or otherwise, of any one of more of the separate trusts herein established, then and in that event I authorize my said executors and trustees, by a proper instrument in writing, executed by all of them, to appoint such trustee as they shall select to be sole trustee of any one or more of the trusts under this my will, and I hereby give and grant unto such trustee company and unto each and every individual who shall be appointed as above provided successor to either of my said executors or trustees, all the rights, powers and authority, discretionary or otherwise, in this my will given to or conferred upon the executors and trustees herein named.

Lesson From Mr. Morgan's Will

How America's Greatest Financier Made Provision for the Administration of His Estate. Avoided Too Heavy a Burden on Trustees. Although Son and Other Members of Family are Executors a Trust Company may be Substituted.

Pride of family, prudence manifested in the minute direction as to the disposal of his very large estate, and a compelling sense of responsibility concerning those things which are heavenly, are the distinguishing elements of the will of J. P. Morgan. The attention of the business men of the country in general and more especially the interest of the bankers, however, have been focused on one of the features of this remarkable man's very notable last testament, which seems to have been a product of his second and, perhaps, his more reflective judgment. It was quite natural that a man, to whom family tradition and descent were so dear, should entrust the carrying out of his specifically expressed wishes to his son and to other members of his family, yet one of the after provisions of his will has a very significant section which is illustrative, not alone of the perfect confidence that can be reposed in a trust company, but which demonstrates that one of the most prudent and astute financiers of his era resorted to a trust company proviso, as if to clinch, bind and cement the carefully planned and explicitly stated authority vested in his will. This notable section reads as follows:

"Notwithstanding the foregoing provision that there shall always be three executors and trustees under this my will, if at any time my said executors and trustees shall be unanimously of opinion that it is better for the interests of my estate that a trust company in the city of New York, authorized by law to execute trusts, shall be appointed sole trustee under the will, or otherwise, of any one or more of the separate trusts herein established, then and in that event I authorize my said executors and trustees, by a proper instrument in writing, executed by all of them, to appoint such trustee as they shall select to be sole trustee of any one or more of the trusts under this my will, and I hereby give and grant unto such trustee company and unto each and every individual who shall be appointed as above provided successor to either of my said executors or trustees, all the rights, powers and authority, discretionary or otherwise, in this my will given to or conferred upon the executors and trustees herein named."

The Substance of Things Hoped For

Written for THE EVENING JOURNAL by James T. Crozier.

How swiftly the days are passing, my friend, Do you realize this to be true? If you're unprepared when you get to the end, What hope is there, friend, for you? The good say, As ye sow, ye shall reap, But remember the promise it brings To those who are ready before the last sleep; And are owned by the dear King of Kings.

If you're living by faith and are trusting down here, As the days come and go, my friend; If you trust in His word you'll have nothing to fear When nearing your journey's end. He will welcome you home in that city above, While parting and pain are unknown, And your soul will be filled with His wonderful love, When at last you are safe near the throne. For that blessed old book gives us promise of rest, While our trials, is o'er, We shall meet our loved ones in that home of the blest, And with Jesus shall dwell evermore.

SERIOUS ERROR IN WILMINGTON

Wilmington Citizens Will Do Well to Profit by the Following. Many fatal cases of kidney disease have reached an incurable stage because the patient did not understand the symptoms. Even today in Wilmington there are many residents making the same serious error. They attribute their mysterious aches and pains to overwork, or worry, perhaps, when all the time their rheumatic pains, backache and bladder irregularities are most probably due to weak and ailing kidneys. If you are ill, if your kidneys are out of order, profit by this Wilmington resident's experience. John McCauley, 932 Kirkwood street, Wilmington, Del., says: "One of the family suffered from backache and Doan's Kidney Pills Completely relieved him. There was a great improvement in every way immediately after he took Doan's Kidney Pills. They are a fine kidney medicine." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. The Old Oak Tree

By Albert W. William. After an absence of forty years the writer had the pleasure on Thursday, of meeting an old friend and schoolmate. In loving remembrance of by-gone days and the oak tree the writer chronicled the following lines:

Give me your hand, Friend Will, I welcome you back from the sea. Let us talk of the past, old chum, When we played neath the old oak tree.

Forty years have passed, Friend Will, Since you parted here from me; And the changes have been many and sad Since we played neath the old oak tree.

When the summer time came with the roses, Filling our hearts with glee, How we built castles in the air for the future As we played neath the old oak tree.

And when the moon rose high in the heavens, And the nightingale sang in the tree-tops so free, We talked of what we would do when we became men, As we sat neath the old oak tree.

And when Old Ned would tune up his fiddle, We were happy as boys could be; For you danced with Fannie and I danced with Annie, In the moonlight neath the old oak tree.

In the beautiful cemetery, Barret's Chapel They buried Fannie and Annie from that pure and free; And we mourned our friends in silence, Who played with us under the old oak tree.

Ah, these are memory's heart chords, Will, That appeal to you and to me. The pleasure of our boyhood days were golden, When we played under the old oak tree.

We have been friends since first we met, And there remains only you and me. Of all those who played together, As boys under the old oak tree.

When this life is ended, Friend Will, And we are crossing the silent sea, Let us hope we'll meet those gone before Who played with us neath the old oak tree.

Being on the firing line of opportunity, in close touch with the needs of individuals and businesses by a constant use of the Wants, gainful chances are at hand for those who make use of Want Ad information.—Adv.
