Packing as a Fine Art—Don't Fold Your Garments Before Perfectly Dry—Tissue Paper an Essential to Good Packing—Never Wise to Have Some One Else Pack Your Trunk for You—Needlework Notes—Initials Should Always Be Embroidered in Hoops—Six Excellent Tried Recipes—Little Stuffed Steaks Very Good.

PACKING AS A FINE ART

Most people are afraid of crushing their clothes by packing them too tightly, yet this is the secret of successful packing. If they are allowed room to slide and slip, they will come forth wrinkled and mussed, whereas if they are firmly held in place in a trunk which is not too large for its contents, you will get far better results. A hostess shudders, too, on beholding the arrival of a mammoth trunk. It is very inconscient to encumber her with too much luggage, and this is a point to remember if you would be a welcome guest.

In planning for a summer tour, you should always arrange your packing so that the things you need most and first will be near the top. The heavier garments which you take with you for emergencies in case of cold weather, may be neatly packed at the very bottom, and if covered securely with a piece of cloth and held in place either by pins or tapes, will act as a false bottom and will not interfere with the lighter clothes.

There is nothing that looks so untidy as wrinkled gowns, and nothing that so takes away from your smart appearance, as the crumpled look of an elaborate costume, so that an hour or two expended upon careful packing is not wasted.

No garment should ever be folded until it is perfectly dry. Every plaited skirt should have each plait carefully caught in place at the hem before packing. Then the skirt should be carefully folded with tissue paper in the fold, and it will come out of the trunk in perfect condition.

Tissue paper is an essential to good packing. It should be placed within every fold; it should be used to stuff out sleeves, bows and puffs, and to place around flowers and beneath feathers, and to fill out vacant corners. It is light and does not add to the weight of luggage.

If there is an abundance of space in a trunk it is a good idea to leave coats on hangers, first filling out the sleeves and fronts; but if this is not convenient, fold the coat inside out, placing the sleeves together, front touching front, then fold once lengthwise, with tissue paper in between, the sleeves also being kept in shape with a slight stuffing.

Some soft gowns are kept smoother by being rolled over a heavy newspaper roll, that has been first covered with sheets of tissue paper, than by straight packing. This, of course, depends upon the material and whether you can accommodate it to a given space.

If your trunk does not contain the modern trays and compartments, paper boxes are a safeguard. Evening gowns may be kept uncrushed by placing them in a separate box, and smaller boxes that fit in the upper tray can be utilized for the many little accessories. Label these boxes with the contents, which saves both time and temper. An elastic band or ribbon will keep the lids in place even if the trunk be turned upside down.

Hats should be pinned in firmly, even though they be well protected by stuffing and wrappings, and extra tapes in trays will keep garments from sliding and slipping.

It is never wise to have some one else pack for you, unless it is your maid, who will pack in the same direction as those of the background. When basting the applied pieces in place, keep the work perfectly flat.

Embroider through both thicknesses of the goods with small, even buttonholing, throwing the punt toward the outer edge. After the buttonholing is finished the extra material is cut away close to the punt edge, taking care not to cut the goods underneath.

Loop chain stitch is sometimes worked around certain parts of an applique pattern, and it adds to the appearance of this work. This, with perhaps a bit of satin stitch and outlining are the only stitches used beside the buttonholing. Very often the entire embroidery is done with the buttonhole stitch.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

If you do not care for stenciling, the best way to secure a broad and bold effect is by means of applique embroidery. While applique work may seem to be easily accomplished, it requires neat and very careful work to give good results. The beauty of this embroidery depends upon the careful, even stitching and the combination of materials used in its construction. Rather heavy coarse linen, combined with a fine, even weave linen produces the best effect.

The pieces to be appliqued should be basted in place so that the threads of the linen run in the same direction as those of the background. When basting the appliqued pieces in place, keep the work perfectly flat.

NEEDLES TO USE.

Most needle workers use the long-eyed or crewel needle for embroidery. Good results can, of course, be secured with the common sewing needle, but a long-eyed needle facilitates the work in that the different grades of cotton and silk are more easily threaded, without being ruffled.

For a material such as butcher's linen, No. 7 crewel needle would be the correct size to use. For fine French embroidery No. 10 needle should be used.

If you cannot secure a Normandy or punch-work needle, a large darning needle can be utilized for the punch embroidery.

INITIALS.

Initials should always be embroidered in hoops or in an embroidery frame, for the material must be held perfectly straight and taut. If hoops are used, the two parts should fit very closely together, and if they do not fit, then the upper hoop should be wrapped with narrow tape or thin strips of lawn.

It is impossible to do good work if the material is the least bit wrinkled or sagged. Use a slender needle, just large enough to carry the cotton, as a big needle punches too large a hole in the material when taking the stitches. The stitches, necessarily are very close together and the holes pierced, as the needle is brought up and down, should be as small as possible.

RECIPES.

Carrot Marmalade.
A delicious marmalade is made of carrots, but strongly resembles orange marmalade, both in coloring and flavor. Boil three cups of diced carrots and put through the vegetable press. Make a syrup of two cups of sugar and one and one-half cups of water, boil for five minutes and add the carrots and three tablespoons of lemon juice. Boil very slowly for an hour and pour into glasses.

Dried Apricot Marmalade.
Four pounds of dried apricots, three pounds of sugar, cold water. Select, if possible, large fruit. Wash thoroughly and soak for twenty-four hours in enough water to cover. Turn apricots into preserving kettle and add the sugar, together with one pint of water. Cook very slowly until reduced to a marmalade, stirring occasionally during the cooking process. It is well, in cooking any such mixture as the above to stand the kettle on an asbestos mat so as to temper the heat. An excellent plan, in making marmalades or heavy jams of any kind, is to put eight or ten ordinary marbles into the preserving kettle with the fruit. These will roll about the bottom of the kettle while the cooking is going on, and will prevent the contents burning.

Mint Jelly.
Use any good cooking apples, preferably greenings, for this jelly, preferring them in the usual way, and adding a good sized package of dried mint in case you cannot find fresh mint in the garden. When the apples are soft, put into the jelly bag, strain off all the juice and measure it. Make in the usual way, adding to the juice the contents of another package of mint tied up in a muslin bag, and color a delicate green with the harmless vegetable coloring that may be purchased at the grocer's.

Little Stuffed Steaks.
One and a half pounds of round steak about half an inch thick; then cut in pieces about six inches long and four wide, place on each piece a large tablespoon of dressing made of one cup of stale bread crumbs, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, one tablespoon of chopped onion browned in butter, half teaspoon salt and two or three dashes pepper. Roll up the little steaks and secure with small toothpicks or skewer. Put a tablespoon of butter and a cup of hot water in bottom of a baking pan or in a heated casserole dish with the little steaks, and place in a hot oven and bake three-quarters of an hour. If baked in an open pan, baste them frequently after they begin to brown. Thicken the gravy and strain over the steaks when arranged on a heated platter.

Cook spinach in boiling water until tender, rub through a sieve. Melt one tablespoon of butter, add spinach and cook two minutes; sprinkle with two-thirds tablespoon of flour, cook a few minutes and add one-fourth cup cream. Garnish buttered molds with slices of hard-molds. Set in a pan of hot water and bake fifteen minutes. Serve with white sauce.

Wash and cut a bunch of the vegetable into short pieces, saving an inch or so below the green part by peeling it. Boil until tender. Make a white sauce of a pint of milk and two tablespoons each of butter and flour. Have ready five hard-boiled eggs. Cut them into small pieces and stir them into the sauce. Cover the bottom of a baking dish with a layer of asparagus, add the sauce, then cover with a thin layer of bread crumbs and continue in the same way until the dish is full. Bake in a quick oven until brown.

MANNISH CLOTHES PREDICTED

By Paul Poirot.

Spatted and hatted, trouser-skirted and pocketed, the well-dressed woman of Spring, 1914, may enjoy all the freedom of men's clothes, and yet appear wholly feminine.

Waistcoats, suspenders, trouser-belts, military buttons, linen collars and more pockets than a woman ever expected—pockets that she can even use without danger of spoiling her silhouette.

Somebody asks, "Are they really trousers?" No, but they are the nearest approach to them ever designed for feminine wear. And besides being practical for the golf links, the polo field, the race course, and other athletic centers, these mannish clothes are femininely charming.

The first indication of these masculine costumes was given in a garment made by Paul Poirot in January. It was a skirt that looked a little like modified trousers with coat, pockets and waistcoat plainly suggested by man's clothes. Now the Paris fashions for spring and summer designed not only by Paul Poirot, by Jeanne Lanvin, and others, go still further along these lines. Tailored suits inspired by man's dress—this is the latest message of Paris to the world of fashion.

Paul Poirot, in the interview given below describes these new tendencies in dress to the wind of emancipation now blowing over woman.

Read his prediction for 1924.

WOMEN'S DRESS IN 1924, PAUL POIROIT'S PREDICTION.
(From a London Newspaper of Recent Date.)

"If you ask me what is the transcendent influence today," said Paul Poirot, "I reply that, in my opinion, it is the wind of emancipation passing over woman, driving her always toward more masculine forms. It is my impression that the tendency will be more and more in the direction of what is plain and severe, and that clothes will be more and more rational, with a view to the practical. In a word, women's dress will become more man-like and independent."

The Future.

M. Poirot paused a moment, and then, at one bound, leaped a decade into the future.

"I have just finished two designs of dresses which will, I foresee, be the fashion some ten years hence. This day I shall have them duly certified by a man of law who will put them under seal until the day, ten years hence, when I will resume possession and open the packet, like a man turning up the final card of Patience to see whether he is right or wrong."

M. Poirot then showed me the fateful designs of what our sisters and cousins and aunts will look like in 1924. I admit I started involuntarily, but when the first shock was over I composed my mind to describe what was before me.

Masculine Modes.

The first woman wore her hair plastered back over her head in the manner affected sometimes by young people nowadays. The collar was of soft linen—turned down—something like an Etonian over an unmistakable man's tailor-made jacket.

The skirt separates sharply from the knee into loose trousers, which allow an entirely free gait. But woman is not entirely eliminated, for her hand still be traced in such details as the tie, which is more artistically knotted than a man's.

Trousers!

The second woman was similar, with the exception that her jacket showed a more fanciful cut. The armholes are scooped out and the shoulder strap is narrow, like a brace, the object being to allow the arm perfect freedom of movement. The gloves are out-and-out masculine, like present-day motor-driving gloves, with gauntlets over the wrist.

Beneath the jacket you see the flaps of a waistcoat, long-pointed edges as now. The trousers, reminiscent of the almost forgotten skirt, are gathered in front in order to mask the figure.

"I will not predict fashions," concluded M. Poirot, "for a disown fashion is an believer only in the influences, and if we continue to undergo the influences now in force I believe that we shall be irresistibly carried toward masculine forms."

IRRITATING AND DISFIGURING PIMPLES

On Face, Also Blackheads, Pimples Red and Inflamed, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 2, Advance, Mo.—"I had a very bad case of pimples on my face which were very troublesome, as they would get sore and would leave red spots where they healed. I also had blackheads in my skin. The pimples were red and inflamed and would come to a head. They would run yellowish pus and each one had a hard core-like lump in it. They were very irritating and disfiguring.

"I was troubled with them six months and had tried several remedies which did no good. Cuticura Soap and Ointment did the work. I would wash my face with the Soap and hot water then apply the Ointment. In about half an hour I would wash again with the Soap. In two months I was cured and the red spots have gone."

(Signed) Miss Ollie Richmond, Oct. 17, 1913.

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health. Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

"Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp."

round bout between Jimmy Clabby and Billy Murray a draw at the end of the match at Daly City tonight.

The decision was a surprise to the majority of those present, as the best that could be given Murray was three rounds of the twenty, while Clabby had a distinct advantage in at least eleven.

The referee must have given Murray a lot of credit for his work in the fifteenth, when he had the Indian in a bad way, but could not get in a decisive punch. In the sixteenth, when Clabby was still suffering from the punishment administered in the preceding round, Murray failed to show the punishing ability with which he has been credited.

In the last four rounds of the fight Clabby was evidently more tired than his opponent, but in the boxing he held his own, and the finishing round was more of a wrestling match than a boxing bout, and Clabby gave as good as he received.

Referee Griffith says he gave Clabby nine of the first twelve rounds and that he called the bout a draw because he figured Murray did enough damage in the last six rounds to offset the lead gained by Clabby in the earlier periods.

BIG FOUR START POLO PRACTICE

New York, April 4.—With Harry Payne Whitney, Devereux Milburn and Larry and Monty Waterbury, the old members of the Big Four in international polo, on hand active practice for the coming match he started today at Lakewood, N. J. Foxall P. Keene, Malcolm Stevenson, Louis Stoddard, Rene La Montagne, Howard Phipps and a score of lesser known players were also on the field.

Nothing has yet been done regarding the making of the team. "The Big Four will aid in practice but the chances of their forming a combination for the defense of the international cup is not at all probable.

About thirty-five ponies are at the disposal of the players and are in charge of Larry Fitzpatrick who has trained polo ponies for many years. Whitney has contributed nearly twenty of the mounts, August Belmont three, Louis Stoddard five, Malcolm Stevenson two, Devereux Milburn five, while two come from Hawaii.

The players will practice at Lakewood until the beginning of next month, when they will take the ponies to Westbury, L. I., for the finishing touches. The string of ponies will be further augmented by mounts from Philadelphia and Boston.

The first practice game is scheduled for April 20.

MAKING TEST PARCEL POST PACKAGE WEIGHT.

Salt Lake, April 4.—The postoffice clerks are having busy days now, as every parcel post package which goes out of the office is being carefully weighed, pursuant to orders issued by the department at Washington. This weighing will be continued for fifteen days, and Postmaster Noble Warrum will then send a report to Washington.

The object of this weighing is to get an estimate from every office in the country of the number and weight of parcel post packages handled during the fifteen days. It is understood that the postmaster general intends issuing an order soon increasing the maximum weight of parcel post packages in the first and second zones from fifty to 100 pounds and of parcels outside these zones to fifty pounds.

It is also proposed to increase the pay of carriers on star routes and other routes where much parcel post matter is handled. The government will be able to determine from the weight results what would be an equitable scale for the carriers and when the increase to 100 pounds is feasible.

GOD'S STANDARD IS PERFECTION

Christian Must Develop Character-Likeness to Christ.

The Desire For Harmony With God a Part of Man's Original Perfection. Some Naturally Drawn to God—Faith the First Step—Consecration the Second Step—Then Growth in Grace and Knowledge—Lessons in the School of Christ—Justice the Foundation of Character—Love Must Be the Superstructure.

Pastor Russell preached a very interesting discourse today on Holiness. His text was, "As He who hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation."—1 Peter 1:15.

The Pastor reminded his audience that the Scriptures explicitly declare that our Creator made man in His own image and pronounced him very good. A part of our first parents' perfection was their desire for harmony with God; but after Adam's disobedience they were cut off from Divine fellowship—as a part of the penalty of sin. This alienation from their Creator was doubtless a most grievous trial.

As centuries rolled on and Adam's posterity became more and more depraved, the original character-likeness to God became indistinct. In some the desire for God is so feeble that they are easily satisfied by pleasure or by sensuality. Many are separated from God through ignorance, superstition and the doctrines of demons, as the Bible declares. Misunderstanding our gracious Creator, they are driven away, and blinded by "the god of this world."

Then the Pastor showed that with some of the race the desire for God and righteousness has prevailed above the stupefying influence of the world, the flesh and the Devil. This class are drawn by the natural inclination of their minds toward God, and are in a favorable condition to hear God's voice speaking peace to them and pointing them to Jesus Christ as the Way, the Truth and the Life.

The Call of the Gospel Age.

Next the Pastor pointed out from Scripture the first two steps to be taken by those who desire to come back into harmony with God. The first step is that of faith in Jesus as their Redeemer. Those who desire to take it must recognize that they are sinners, that Jesus' death on Calvary was sacrificial, and that its grand outcome will be the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom for uplifting mankind out of sin and death conditions.

Those who have sufficient faith to take the first step may then take the second—consecration. After they have presented their all in sacrifice—time, talent, wealth, etc.—then our Lord imputes to them individually His merit, thus making them holy and acceptable to God, who immediately begets them of His Holy Spirit to a new nature. Thenceforth they are New Creatures, to whom "old things have passed away and all things become new." But there are imperfections of the flesh, which may occasionally crop out. These the New Creature must promptly notice, for the New Creature is the new will, which henceforth regulates the body.

The Pastor fears that some Christians have not realized what a contract they have on hand. All the consecrated, he declared, must remember that their first obligation is to subdue themselves. While any may give valuable suggestions to others, yet the responsibility for the body rests with each as a New Creature. Some are imperfect in one direction, others in another. "There is none righteous [none perfect]."

The New Creatures in School.

Then the Pastor showed that those whom God has begotten of His Holy Spirit as New Creatures enter the School of Christ for character-development. There they must grow in grace, knowledge and love. As St. Paul explains, they must be mentally transformed, made ready for the Kingdom of God. Thereafter matters are to be decided, not according to their own preferences, but according to the principles of justice and love—by rules altogether different from those that formerly regulated them.

Everything done by those in the School of Christ must be squared by the Rule of Justice, the speaker continued. Many of the Lord's people evidently have not fully realized that they must practise the Golden Rule to the full extent of their ability. Failure on the part of some to recognize this principle, he declared, has caused the way of the Lord to be spoken evil of sometimes. If a Christian fails to pay his debts or is careless as to how he involves himself, it is because this principle of justice does not stand out prominently enough before his mind. If as an old creature he has habitually ignored the lines of justice and shirked responsibilities, this will not do for him as a New Creature.

The cultivation of the principles of justice in act, word and thought must be the Christian's daily concern. Whoever thinks unjustly will act unjustly, in spite of himself. The New Creature must always think of others calmly, without prejudice, giving them the benefit of every doubt.
