PASTOR RUSSELL

A Popular Pastor Coming Sunday.
Pastor Russell—who talks to millions through press, at Grand Opera House Fairmont, 3 p. m.

The celebrated evangelist who preaches to more than twelve million weekly through the newspapers and thousands personally, whose six volumes of Scripture studies have reached the enormous circulation of over eight millions, printed in nineteen different languages, will preach in the Grand Opera House, Fairmont, Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Much interest is being centered in the coming of Pastor Russell. He will lecture in the interest of the public under the auspices of the International Bible Students' association whose headquarters are in London. This evangelistic work is carried on by christian people of all denominations with the purpose of publicly examining the Bible testimony on subjects of importance to all. No collections are solicited. A hearty invitation is extended to all who are interested.

"Heaven, Hell and Purgatory" is the subject of the pastor's discourse which will be delivered at Fairmont at three o'clock p. m. and at Clarksburg at eight o'clock p. m. Sunday, November 30. If you wish a good Bible view on this important topic, you should hear him.

Importations Of Diamonds at Highest Mark

HIGHEST RECORD IS MADE IN THE CALENDAR YEAR OF 1913.

VALUE OF DIAMONDS AND OTHER PRECIOUS STONES FIFTY SEVEN MILLION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.—Diamond importations into the United States made their highest record in the calendar year 1913. The value of diamonds and other precious stones imported during the current year will approximate 57 million dollars, this being the first occasion on which the total has crossed the 50-million-dollar line. Twenty years ago, according to the official figures of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, the total imports of diamonds and other precious stones were but 11 million dollars; in 1903, 28 million; and in 1912, approximately 57 million dollars, this estimate being based upon the known figures for the nine months ended with September, which are 30 per cent in excess of the highest record heretofore made. These totals necessarily include imitations of precious stones, which now form about 2 per cent of the total, but were not separately shown prior to 1912.

The latest official figures show for the nine months ended with September importations of 11 1/2 million dollars' worth of uncut diamonds, against 7 1/4 million in the corresponding months of last year; of diamonds cut but not set, 23 1/2 million dollars, against 18 million in the corresponding period of last year; of all precious stones 43 1-3 million dollars, against 32 1/4 million in the corresponding months of last year. These figures justify the estimate of approximately 57 million dollars as the value of the importations of this class of articles in the year which ends with next month, against 42 1/2 million in 1912 and 44 1/4 million in the former high-record year, 1906, and making it perfectly apparent that the record of 1913 will far exceed that of any earlier year.

Greater Fluctuations. Diamond importations show greater fluctuations than those of many other classes of merchandise entering the markets of the United States. The total imports of diamonds and other precious stones in 1896 amounted to 5 million dollars; in 1897, 6 1/2 million, increasing to practically 10 million in 1898; 16 1/2 million in 1899; 24 million in 1901; 37 million in 1905; and 44 million in 1906. In 1907, however, the total dropped to less than 33 million dollars, and in 1908 to 14 million, increasing to 43 1/2 million in 1909, since which time there has been no material change until in the current year, when the total increases from 42 1/2 million dollars in 1912 to approximately 57 million in 1913, a much larger increase than in any prior year in the history of the trade.

This large gain in recent years occurs chiefly in cut diamonds, the uncut diamonds, which form a little over one-fourth of the total imports, showing slight gains over earlier years of the past decade. The value of uncut diamonds imported in 1902, ten years ago, was 10 million dollars and in 1913 will approximate 16 million, while that of cut diamonds was, in 1903, 13 million dollars, and in the current year will approximate 30 million.

Where They Came From. Most of the diamonds imported into the United States, while originating in South Africa, are invoiced from the Netherlands, Belgium, France, and the United Kingdom. About two-thirds of the uncut diamonds are imported from the United Kingdom, in whose South African possessions the principal diamond mines of the world are located. Of the cut diamonds imported, more than three-fourths are from Belgium and the Netherlands, about equally divided between those two countries. While the United Kingdom, Belgium, and the Netherlands are large importers of diamonds, a considerable proportion thereof are, in each case, re-exported.

The people of the United States are the world's largest importers of diamonds for permanent ownership, and they, according to a statement by George F. Kunz, in the Encyclopedia Americana, own practically half the diamonds of the world. The statement in question, published in 1903, estimated the value of all diamonds known to exist in the world at that time at 1 billion dollars, and added that about 500 million dollars' worth were then owned in the United States, and that "therefore it may safely be said that one-half of all the diamonds known are owned by the United States." The importations of diamonds into the United States subsequent to that date amount to over 300 million dollars, making the total stock of diamonds in the United States at the present time approximately three-quarters of a billion dollars.

CHARACTER READING

The best way to read a merchant's business character is by his advertisement. Just run over today's West Virginian and note the business news.

Don't the "ads" pretty well reflect the houses as you know them?

One man is appealing for one kind of trade, and another for another kind, and each one is directly or indirectly writing his own business character into his advertisements.

Mighty interesting study, advertisements! Mighty good guide for you to go by.

But what kind of character is the merchant writing who is not advertising?

Oh, he's not writing at all—he's courting—

Courting slowly but surely—
