

JUDGE CONNOLLY REFUSES TO QUIT IN MOLE CASE

Will Probably Go Before Justice Stein, Monday, as Private Citizen and Ask Warrant for Little Girl's Aunt.

Recorder Points Out That Supreme Court Specifically Orders Child Handed Over To Relative.

With Prosecuting Attorney Van Zile practically refusing to take any action along the line of prosecution for perjury in the Lois Mole case, and with Judge Henry S. Hulbert, of the juvenile court, taking practically the same stand, as far as any criminal prosecution is concerned, although he intends to exert every effort to alleviate the plight of the unfortunate little girl, the punitive aspect of the case is now "up to" Judge Connolly, and there is every indication that he will meet the situation.

Police Justice Christopher E. Stein has expressed his willingness to offer his aid to any person, with a knowledge of the facts in the Mole case, who may desire to start criminal proceedings against those who induced Little Lois Mole to perjure herself, by swearing in court that her father had not abused her, in spite of her previous statements to the police.

Judge Hulbert was asked, Saturday morning, whether he would take advantage of Justice Stein's offer, and appear as complainant in perjury proceedings, but he replied that he was not interested in the criminal phase of the matter. He desired, he said, only to see that the little girl was placed in proper hands, and removed from the influences which had caused the unsavory court trial.

Judge Hulbert expressed the opinion that it was up to the police and the criminal courts to sustain their own interests, which had been flouted in the case.

Chief of Detectives McDonnell, who was twice a witness to the little girl's contradictory statements, would be the logical person to start perjury proceedings, but he is at the St. Clair Flats on a vacation, and cannot be reached.

In view of that fact, the case was put up to Judge Connolly, who stated that he would take under consideration the proposition to go before Police Justice Stein, as a private citizen, with a knowledge of the facts in the case, and swear out a warrant against Mrs. Florence Chappell, aunt of Lois Mole, charging her with subornation of perjury.

Judge Connolly said that he would consider the matter until Monday, and would then announce his course of action. Among those who have followed the tangled case from the time of Mole's arrest up to the emphatic letter from Judge Connolly, strongly recommending that the local courts be protected, by the prosecutor, from being toyed with by bold and open perjury, the opinion is strong that Judge Connolly will not let the matter drop.

Dispatches from Lansing state that examination of the finding of the supreme court in the Mole case shows that custody of the child was not given to the aunt, the court passing merely upon a question of jurisdiction.

Judge Connolly showed The Times, a copy of the decision and order of the supreme court, which contains the following language:

Upon the hearing, it was found that the child, Lois Mole, was given into the custody of Miss Ada Freeman, the probation officer of Wayne county. An order will be entered, requiring her to deliver the child to the petitioner, upon request.

The petitioner was Lois Mole's aunt, Mrs. Florence Chappell, of Fowlerville.

"While the supreme court is said not to have given the child to Mrs. Chappell, the fact remains, that Mrs. Chappell has the child," says Judge Connolly. "And that order by the supreme court would seem to cover the question."

Prosecuting Attorney Van Zile reiterated, Saturday morning, his intention to refuse to prosecute any person or persons guilty of suborning Lois Mole to perjure herself.

"I have had detectives at work for nearly a month and they have failed to bring in any evidence that would warrant a prosecution," said Mr. Van Zile.

If Judge Connolly takes upon himself, as a private citizen, the duty of seeking legal punishment for one of the boldest and most spectacular cases of defeating justice ever attempted in the local courts, he will act upon the fact that he was one of the personal witnesses to a confession by Lois Mole that she had perjured herself, upon advice of her aunt, Mrs. Florence Chappell, of Fowlerville.

There were present in Judge Hulbert's court, Saturday morning, Attorney William Van Dyke, and Judge Connolly.

If the case were brought before Justice Stein, in considering the advisability of issuing a warrant, the justice would be allowed to take the statements of personal witnesses, and, if he wished further enlightenment, would have the power to call in such other witnesses as might have further information.

Accused of Defrauding Hotel.

Arrested in Windsor, Friday, on a charge of passing a bogus check on the Continental hotel in Memphis, Tenn., J. C. Lacey was brought to Detroit, Saturday, by Detectives Reid and Good. "Yes, I'll waive extradition," he told the detectives when they came after him. "One night in the Windsor police station is enough for me."

The arrest was made at the request of the Pinkerton agency in Detroit.

Little Patsy Told To "Git."

Patrick McGuire, alias Mulroy, alias Little Patsy, picked up by Detective Frank Wilkinson a few days ago, was in police court, Saturday morning. He is accused by the police of being a pickpocket. Justice Stein gave him until Monday to get out of town. If he is arrested again he will be sent to the House of Correction for 60 days.

ADMITS THEFT FROM EMPLOYER

Morris Auerbach Says He and Joseph Cherwonski Systematically Robbed A. Sufferin.

Arrested by Detectives Downey and Poz, Friday, Morris Auerbach, clerk for A. Sufferin, wholesale and retail dry goods merchant at No. 354 Hastings-st., confessed, Saturday, to the police that he was guilty of working a very clever ruse on his employer.

Auerbach declared that he and Joseph Cherwonski are distant relatives and that between the two they have been systematically taking goods from Sufferin. The value of the goods may be about $1,000. Cherwonski has been getting goods right along at the Sufferin store, according to the story Auerbach told the detectives. He would come to the store in the morning when Sufferin was away and Auerbach would give him the goods.

Then Cherwonski would ship the goods to New York to B. Weinstein. Auerbach admitted, the police say, that he was the B. Weinstein. He said he intended to go to New York and claim the goods.

The detectives recovered about $500 worth of goods in Cherwonski's house at No. 302 Alfred-st. It was the intention to ship the goods to New York, according to Auerbach.

Cherwonski, who also is under arrest, does not admit his part of the alleged theft. He says he bought the goods from Auerbach. The police say that besides the goods recovered there are two big packages in the United States Express offices in New York and another package in the National Express office in Detroit.

Detective Downey has gone to New York to investigate.

The police declare that Cherwonski recommended Auerbach to Mr. Sufferin, when Auerbach applied to Sufferin for a position.

Auerbach gives his residence as No. 220 Adelaide-st.

PASTOR RUSSELL IS GIVEN WARM WELCOME ABROAD

Great Brooklyn Divine, Whose Bible Studies Are Featured by Times, Creates Great Impression.

"Black and White," London's popular illustrated weekly, prints a full-page sketch of the wonderful reception extended to Pastor Russell, of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, upon his recent appearance in Albert hall in the city. The periodical also pays a splendid tribute to the sincerity and simplicity of the wonderful preacher's methods and to his attractive personality.

The Christian Globe, of London, declares that no preacher since the days of Beecher and Talmage has occupied so prominent a position as Pastor Russell.

The Academy of Music, Brooklyn's largest tabernacle, was filled to overflowing when the great preacher was welcomed home from his foreign tour last Friday. He spoke on "Jerusalem," having revisited the Holy Land on his recent tour.

This summer Pastor Russell will extend his work to New York harbor, having been presented with a fully equipped and seaworthy naphtha and sailing yacht, the Angel, which will be used in ministering to the sailors of all nationalities.

Pastor Russell's Bible studies are appearing in The Times every Saturday and are eagerly followed by thousands of Sunday-school workers.

"NOT LIKE MY FIRST HUBBY."

Mrs. Joseph Hergott Tells Court Second Spouse Treats Her Badly.

"No man's going to get my first husband's money," he told me the day before he died how to take care of his money and I'm going to do it."

Mrs. Joseph Hergott looked her second husband squarely in the eye as she made the foregoing announcement in Police Justice Stein's court, Saturday morning. Mr. Hergott looked like a very unhappy person, but he denied any intention of juggling whatever funds had been left by the first spouse of his wife.

The Hergotts have been married about 10 months and Mrs. Hergott says that Joseph has been very unkind during the last seven months. She opined that her first husband never treated her like Joseph does.

Joseph was plainly peeved at the constant references to the virtues of his predecessor in the household of his wife.

"You've packed your trunk for the tenth and last time," said Mrs. Hergott. "This time you go."

Hergott looked as if he were perfectly agreeable to the proposition and Police Justice Stein suspended the case long enough to see if the warring parties would agree or disagree.

HAT PIN FIGHTERS IN COURT.

Justice Stein Adjoins Further Hearing Until June 25.

Frances Dunning and Henrietta Rice, who selected the Madison apartments for their hatpin battle at 2 o'clock Friday morning, were before Police Justice Stein again Saturday morning.

Miss Dunning fitted before the judge in presence of a gorgeous vine-colored dress, but the brilliancy of her habitually failed to draw attention from her lacerated features. She is still a sight.

Miss Rice assumed a pugnacious attitude. She curtly informed the court that her sister, Lavina, whose presence is earnestly desired in settling the dispute, had gone out of town.

"Anyway, I don't draw hatpins," said the young woman. "I'm able to take care of myself without doing that."

Police Justice Stein adjourned the case until June 25.

Although Henrietta Rice insisted that her sister, Lavina, was not in town, Lavina was arrested Saturday noon by Patrolman Dean. The arrest was made on an old warrant sworn out by Frances Dunning, charging Lavina with stealing Frances' hat in the Grande cafe.

Business offers greater rewards than politics," says Uncle Joe Cannon. But, you know, there have been cases known where the two were combined.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

JEALOUSY DRIVES MAN TO SUICIDE

Basil Mason, Highland Park, Feared He Had Lost Wife's Love—Leaves Pathetic Note for Mother.

Mrs. Thomas Mason, 672 Bathurst-st., Toronto: My Own Darling Mother: Forgive me when you get this letter for what I have done. I have done it because the girl I love has lost her love for me, from my own selfish, jealous disposition. I love her more than my own God, and my love is just driving me mad. I have been so jealous of her that I am killing her, and for that reason I decided to save her and take the leap that lays open to every man.

If there is a God and He knows how much I love her, He will forgive me for doing what I am going to do because I am doing it to spare her. Don't pray for me, darling. Don't blame her, for she is to me what the Blessed Virgin was to Jesus Christ. Kiss Joe and Chat and Charlie and Old Rox.

You are my own old self, my dearest mother. I go to see what I can do to atone for conduct to my love on the other side of life. God-bye, darling, I love you.

Your son, BASIL.

After three months of married life, Basil Mason, No. 64 Berensford-ave., Highland Park, was driven to suicide by his own jealous disposition. The foregoing letter, penned to his mother in Toronto, explains his motive for self-destruction.

Some mystery attaches to the young man's death and Coroner Bennett has ordered a post-mortem examination of the body. Although the letter was sealed and addressed, it was not dated and it is not known just when he wrote it.

Mason had complained, Friday evening, of feeling ill, but when his wife suggested calling a doctor, he forbade her to do so. He drank large quantities of water, but gave no other indication of poisoning. Mrs. Mason told Coroner Bennett that her husband had left the house after 6 o'clock, Friday evening, and she was at a loss for an explanation of where he could have obtained any poison.

At 5:30 o'clock, Saturday morning, he arose and sat on the edge of the bed, complaining of feeling ill. "I'm poisoned," he said to his wife. A moment later he was seized with convulsions and died within a few minutes.

Basil Mason was 23 years old and was employed as a bookkeeper in the plant of the Ford Motor Car Co. His wife before her marriage was a stenographer and was employed by Lawrence W. Snell, proprietor of the Log Cabin Creamery, No. 3223 Woodward-ave.

Neighbors says that if Mason was jealous of his young wife, he had little ground for being so. Both the young man and his wife were well-educated and extremely fond of reading and study.

The unhappy termination of their marriage has occasioned considerable surprise in the neighborhood where they reside.

County Physicians Parker and Forbes performed a post-mortem examination on the body Saturday noon. They decided that death was probably due to poisoning. The organs were all congested.

Van Camp's is Natural Milk

"Condensed" Milk is Not

This is how condensed milk differs from Van Camp's—in cost and quality and service. Please learn the facts, then judge which you want to use.

Many people still cling to condensed milk because they don't know why Van Camp's has displaced it.

They pay twice as much as those who use Van Camp's, and they get but half of the service.

So we deem it wise, in the interest of all, to publish these important facts.

Nothing But Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk with two-thirds the water evaporated.

Nothing whatever is added—no sugar, no starch, no preservative. Nothing is subtracted save water.

Our evaporating plants are located in six states, and all of them are close to our dairies.

The fresh milk is there placed in a vacuum. And a very moderate heat, because of the vacuum, throws off the water in steam.

We reduce the milk until it shows 8 per cent butter fat—about 30 per cent total solids.

The milk is sterilized after the cans are sealed. We do nothing else to preserve it.

It is cheaper than raw milk, because the cost of raw milk lies largely in the cost of daily delivery.

"Condensed" Milk is Nearly Half Sugar

"Condensed" milk may be also evaporated somewhat, for the purpose of reducing the bulk. But then sugar is added—from 40 to 50 per cent.

That was the old way of preserving milk before sterilization came in to displace it. And makers are very glad to have users cling to it, because the sugar cheapens the milk.

But remember this: About half that you pay for "condensed" milk buys nothing but preservative sugar.
