

THE CHAUTAUQUA FOR EVERYBODY.

THE Chautauqua is the most democratic of all forms of entertainment. Everybody enjoys it. Young and old, rich and poor, educated or not, all races and conditions of men and women find in the Chautauqua a welcome change of experience and wholesome enjoyment.

The music is so varied that all grades of legitimate taste are pleased. Classics for the expert and popular music for the multitudes are provided in great abundance. Lectures on education, travel, science and morals furnish rich food for thought. Entertainers who know how are employed to furnish plenty of wholesome amusement.

The Chautauqua affords a convenient meeting place for the people. Old acquaintances are renewed and new ones formed. It is the center for a week of neighborhood interest and warms the hearts of the people toward one another.

The Chautauqua helps solve the problem of co-operation. The people learn to pull together for big accomplishments. That habit once thoroughly formed, they can go on to almost any desired end. The Chautauqua is the democratic institution of the whole people.

GOVERNOR ROBERT B. GLENN.

GOVERNOR GLENN is reappearing on the Chautauqua this season because he made such a tremendous impression last season that there was universal demand for his return. The governor proved himself to be one of the princes of the platform, and his wonderful oratory, his genial nature and his wholesome common sense endeared him to the people. He comes with a new message, sparkling with good humor and buoyant hope. He will be received with increased enthusiasm everywhere.

Will be Seen at Watertown Chautauqua.

TAKE PLENTY OF TIME TO EAT.
There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers. Adv. 51-2

Have You a Rubber Roof on Your House, Barn or Auto Shed that Has Been on Two or More Years?
Have You Ever Painted it With ASPHALT ROOF PAINT

Do it now--any roof will dry out decay and blow off if not covered with the proper paint every three to four years. Don't use a common oil paint as it will not do the business. Spend a few cents for asphalt paint and save dollars on your roof. Apply it when the sun is bright and hot.

Watertown, South Dakota

Wisconsin Man's Opinion of So. Dak.

The prosperity of South Dakota, its progressiveness in settling its own problems, and the general desirability of this commonwealth as a place of residence are well set forth in the following interview published in the Oshkosh, Wis., Daily Northwestern:
"When the western farmer learns how to do his work scientifically, the state of South Dakota will become one of the wealthiest and most prosperous agricultural commonwealths in the United States. But at the present time not one in ten knows anything about practical farming."

This is the observation of J. K. Terrell, of the town of Omro, near this city, who has just returned from a trip to that state, made in the interests of the furnishing of suitable feeding grounds for wild fowl.

"In the early days, when the land was first settled," continued Mr. Terrell, "wheat was found to be a profitable crop. Everybody went wheat and oat crazy and raised nothing else. While the land was new this worked well and it was not at all unusual for a farmer to get better than forty bushels of wheat to the acre. But the constant use of the land for the same crop has shown its effect in weakening the fertility. Now the yield is from twelve to fifteen bushels of wheat. But in a few instances where farmers have learned how to handle their land by fertilizing and by rotation of crops they have brought the average back to upwards of twenty-five bushels.

"I did not hesitate, when talking to a farmer there, to tell him he did not know how to farm. He utilizes great tracts of 300 acres and upwards and all that is not planted to wheat or oats is allowed to go to grass and is not used. Few of the farmers keep any cattle, and there is a great opportunity there for stock raising. And the farmers did not even house their machinery, permitting it to stand out in the sun and storms and even in the snow in the winter. I knew that was the custom some years ago, but I supposed it had stopped before now. When these South Dakotans wake up to what is real practical farming they will make a greater success, for better land than theirs cannot be found anywhere on the fertile western plains.

"South Dakota has some very 'progressive' laws, especially as they relate to the liquor business. Under a state law every saloon closes at 9 o'clock at night and at that hour one cannot even get liquor in any form to take away with him. Sharp on the minute the place is emptied and the door locked. And I did not find any place, even in towns so small as to have but one saloon, where the license was less than $1,000.

"South Dakota is prosperous but it is not extravagant. For example, the limit of tax on farm property is four mills, while in Wisconsin we have to pay as high as from seven to ten. But it does not have to build any roads or bridges. Just wearing the grass off the prairie makes good roads and nature did not provide very many rivers to bridge. There was one thing that struck me as peculiar and that was the lack of trees. Nature did not provide that state with much timber and even that which has been planted does not grow well. I saw many trees that had been set out but they were stunted and did not look thrifty like our trees here."

Mr. Terrell made the trip at the behest of the state of South Dakota and that commonwealth paid all his expenses. His trip was made in the place of his son, Clyde, who has become an acknowledged expert on the subject of wild fowls and their feed, but who could not arrange to go at this time. He went in company with the state game warden, visiting about fifty lakes for the purpose of planting and wild rice in order to furnish feeding grounds for those birds. "I did not see any wild rice in any of the lakes I visited," said Mr. Terrell. "It seems to be entirely foreign to that locality. There have been many attempts to propagate it there but in each case dry seed was used, which would not sink and root at all.

"The seed we furnished was guaranteed to germinate, but we could not guarantee it to grow. It was planted in good condition and it will grow if conditions are right. I tested every lake with litmus paper and found each water to be alkaline. I do not know whether it will grow or not and we could not guarantee that, nor could we agree to make it grow in the ducks' stomachs if they should eat it up. But that it will grow under proper conditions is certain, for there was not a bag out of the ten that had not already sprouted after being taken out of cold storage. The last bag, which had been out of storage about five days, had seeds with sprouts of from half an inch to an inch in length.

"At present the South Dakota duck hunter has to shoot his game on land.

The birds feed on the grain in the fields and it must be about as much sport to hunt them on land as it would be to hunt barnyard fowl, besides which the duck meat flavor is lacking if it has not fed on wild rice and wild celery. We planted wild rice in about twenty-five lakes and sloughs that seemed the most likely to be favorable and I shall wait the result with a great deal of interest."

Superfluity.
"You never admit having made a mistake?"
"What's the use?" asked Senator Sorghum. "When I make a mistake there are always plenty of people to talk about it without my joining in."—Washington Star.

THE GREAT TEACHER AND HIS SCHOOL

"They Shall All Be Taught of God" Through His Word.

How to Enter the School of Christ. Meekness the Primary Lesson—Then Comes Humility—Next Come Gentleness, Patience, Long-suffering, Brotherly-kindness and Love—Methods of Instruction—Two Classes Soon to Be Graduated—Disposal of the Finally Incurable—Future Service of the Successful Classes.

PASTOR RUSSELL

June 14.—Pastor Russell's text today was our Lord's well-known exhortation: "Learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly of heart." (Matthew 11:29). The Pastor's Photo-Drama is certainly helping all who see it to understand the Master's teachings. In our busy day few have time to study as they could wish. To all such the Photo-Drama seems to supply a long-felt want.

The Pastor began with the statement that there is only one way to get rid of sin—belief in the Lord Jesus Christ. But mere intellectual belief does not accomplish this result. Whoever believes truly will make a full consecration of himself to God. From the Scriptural standpoint a believer is a disciple, a pupil.

The School of Christ is not open to everybody, the speaker declared. The whole world are not in that School. There is but one definite way of entering it. Hear the Master's own words: "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." Only those are enrolled in the Master's School who present their bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God through the imputed merit of the Redeemer.

The Primary Lesson.
Those enrolled in the School of Christ, the Pastor said, are taught a variety of lessons, of which the first is meekness—teachableness. Probably there is a greater lack along this line than any other. Self-conceit and self-will are qualities which prevent their possessors from being teachable.

Other lessons are taught in this unique School. Next in order are humility, gentleness, patience, long-suffering and brotherly-kindness. These are characteristics of the Lord's Spirit. Whoever is devoid of these qualities which go to make up love must acquire them if he would be graduated from the Master's School.

Then, lest any should be discouraged, the speaker explained that the flesh of some who are really overcomers may never compare favorably with that of some who naturally possess these desirable qualities; but that they must have these characteristics of the Lord's Spirit in their minds, in their wills; for the Lord will judge them by their desires, their endeavors, their efforts. Whoever will be of the Kingdom class must be meek and gentle.

How These Lessons Are Learned.
Then the Pastor illustrated the methods by which the Master teaches His pupils to acquire these graces of the Holy Spirit. If a disciple does something wrong, he must be meek enough to go to the person injured and acknowledge his fault. If he has been rude, he must offer suitable apologies. Such discipline is good for unruly pupils. So by their difficulties the pupils in the School of Christ learn the required lessons, if not in one way, then in another; for learn they must.

If the Lord finds that the pupil's mind is meek, humble, patient, gentle, loving. He will make allowance for the faults of the body, and in the resurrection will give that pupil a body which will carry out the intentions of the new mind. Therefore all in the School of Christ should keep their hearts right with God, and do their very best to keep the body under the control of the new mind. All such self-discipline is part of the preparation for the Kingdom work.

The standard of character-development which the Pastor upholds is very high. He declared that whoever would be graduated with honors from the School of Christ must be so meek, humble, patient, that he will be ready to receive the Master's instructions in whatever way He may send them. No matter how it comes, he asserted, if any experience brings us knowledge of God, if it scatters our darkness, ignorance, superstition, we may be sure that the Master has done it.

Commencement Day is Coming.
The Pastor showed that two classes will be graduated from this School. One will receive the highest honors—glory, immortality, joint-heirship with Christ in His Millennial Kingdom. The other class will be servants of God on the spirit plane, and will assist the Kingdom class. All incurable pupils will pass into the Second Death. In conclusion he exhorted all the consecrated to greater earnestness in learning God's will and in developing the character-likeness of their Lord. To accomplish this result, they must receive blow after blow, experience after experience, trial after trial. But to all who are rightly exercised by this discipline the blessed result will be character-likeness to our Lord.
