BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES OLD TESTAMENT TIMES

THE PALACE OF BLINDNESS, Matthew 18: 1-12—April 28.

Text: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Verse 8.

Of the Great Teacher we read, "He spake as never man spake." He was the Man Christ Jesus, but He was not a fallen man, not a sinner. His life was transferred from an earthly man, He was holy harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners.

The eight Beatitudes illustrate the difference between the teachings of Jesus and all other teachings, from every other quarter. He is a new view of what it means to be a man. His Message from all other messages to this day. While other teachers instructed the people to hold up their heads, to remember noble ancestors, etc., and thereby be blessed, Jesus encouraged His hearers to realize that the poor in spirit, the humble-minded, would receive the great blessings.

While other teachers held forth the rich the great, the learned, the mighty, the influential amongst men as the patterns to be copied, if happiness would be attained, Jesus, in these Beatitudes, asked for the reverse. His prescriptions for happiness have indeed been followed by a few, and these alone appreciate their merit and are finding the blessings promised, both for the present life and for that which is to come.

The Mission of Jesus and His teachings, at His first advent, were not to the world, but to a special class: "He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear." The Message for the world will go forth at His second advent, and we have the assurance that all the blinded eyes will be opened and all the deaf ears will be unstopped, and the knowledge of the glory of God will fill the whole earth.

In today's study, Jesus was addressing such of the Jews as had the hearing ear, such as had an inclination to be His disciples. He was addressing the class to whom He said, "If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me, and where I am there My disciple be." It was to this class that the Beatitudes were spoken, not with thunderings of Sinai, not with threats of vengeance and death if the lessons were not learned.

The Master was addressing such as believed on Him, the class for whom He was about to appear in the presence of God, after finishing His sacrificial work, to impute to them His covering for their iniquities and their imperfections and to give them a standing with the Father, and to make their sacrifices "holy and acceptable to God." (Romans xii, 1) He was instructing these as to how they could best make their calling and election sure, how they could the more successfully win the great "prize" to which they were called. Others may gather precious lessons from these Beatitudes, but only the spirit-begotten can appreciate them fully.

The Palace of Blessedness. The foundation of the Palace of Blessedness is Humility. None can ever hope for a share in the Messianic Kingdom except as he is humble-minded: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." To such and such only will the great blessing come. It would never do for God to accept as a member of the Kingdom class one possessed of the spirit of pride and selfish ambition. In Satan's experience we have an illustration of what pride might accomplish. God proposes that humility shall be a primary test as respects the Bride class.

sorrow seems necessary for our complete separation from the things of the world, the flesh and the devil. Frequently go, they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

The Palace Library is Meekness. None can be successfully taught of the Lord and fully enjoy the Palace of Blessedness without the quality of meekness or teachableness. Into this Library the fower of Jesus must be brought, there to learn valuable lessons, without which he could not progress in his faith-building and character-development. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." As members of Messiah's heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus their Lord, these will come into the full possession of the earth. For a thousand years this control will be maintained while mankind will be taught valuable lessons and be uplifted out of sin and degradation and death to the perfect manhood lost by Father Adam, redeemed by Jesus, where our hunger and thirst for righteousness will be encouraged and satisfied at the same time. "Blessed are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled."

The Door of the Palace: Mercy. One of the most important lessons for the New Creature to learn is love, sympathy, mercy. In the Divine arrangement we must go out and in at the door constantly. Our own imperfections continually beset us, and we should as continually impress upon us the merciful disposition toward those with whom we have to do. Only thus will we be fitted and prepared to be faithful and merciful members of the Royal Priesthood in dealing with and blessing the world of mankind during the Messianic Kingdom. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy." "If ye forgive not men their trespasses neither will your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses."

The Parlor of our Palace is represented by the characteristics of the Peacemaker. It implies a certain resistance and victory in respect to our own affairs, furnishing us the opportunity to help others: "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God."

The Kitchen of our Palace represents the trials and difficulties incidental to the rounding out of our characters, and the hunger and thirst for nourishment and upbuilding spiritually. "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My Name's sake: rejoice and be exceedingly glad, for great is your reward in heaven."

STUDIES ON—WATER DRINKING

From "The Outlook" February 24, 1912.

Commenting on exhaustive experiments conducted by Prof. P. B. Hawk, of the University of Illinois, to determine the value of water drunk during meal-time.

The conclusion was this: "Copious water drinking causes a more pronounced lessening of the intestinal processes. Many desirable and no undesirable effects were obtained by the use of water with meals and, in general, the more water taken, the more pronounced were the benefits."

And here's good authority for drinking more water!
