THE WISEST OF KINGS WAS MISLED.

1 Kings 12:1-24—August 8.
Israel's Wisest King Becomes Most Foolish—Dissatisfaction Amongst the People—Jerusalem Favored Over All Proportion—Solomon's Son and Successor—Revolt of the Ten Tribes—The Two Kingdoms—Reunited—After the Babylonian Captivity—Lessons From King Rehoboam's Experience.

"Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall."—Proverbs 16:18.
The latter half of King Solomon's reign was less wonderful and less creditable than the first half. Although his times, nevertheless dissatisfaction was felt. The king rested upon the marvels of the early part of his reign, became more and more interested in foreign affairs, and multiplied the number of his wives and his troubles. The wealth of the nation, represented in the great public improvements, was really public wealth, in which all the people were interested; but the subsequent greater attention to personal aggrandizement and to favoritism of the court was not in the interest of the people as a whole, but merely favorable to certain classes.

Although no rebellion was made against King Solomon nor even protest, so far as the records show, nevertheless the people concluded to have a change in the kingdom under King Solomon's successor, his son Rehoboam. This dissatisfaction was mainly in the ten tribes. The two tribes, in whose territory was the capital city were satisfied with the great improvements which had come to them. Jerusalem had been favored out of all proportion to the remainder of the country. Israelites of all the other tribes had shared in a general conscription of labor at a comparatively small compensation; and they felt that even-handed justice had not been rendered them.

The Kingdom Divided.
For these reasons, the coming of King Rehoboam to the throne was the signal for a protest and for a demand that the king guarantee the people against oppression—a demand very similar to that of the British public in connection with the Magna Charta. The demand was made at the time of the king's coronation—a time when all the tribes were supposed to participate in acknowledging their loyalty to the king. Then came representatives of the ten tribes, with Jeroboam as leader, saying "Make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us lighter, and we will serve thee."

The young king had them depart for three days and come again. When he conferred with the old men of his kingdom, asking what he should do, they replied, "If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants forever." But this advice was not fully satisfactory to young King Rehoboam; so he inquired of his personal friends, younger men of his acquaintance. These gave opposite advice, saying, "Thus shalt thou say unto this people: My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins; and now, whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke. My father has chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions"—whips with metal pieces at the end of the lash.

The thought of the younger men and of Rehoboam, who agreed with them, was that if the king would yield it would be merely the starting of rebellious demands which eventually would be unendurable, and that the people should be intimidated, threatened. But the ten tribes under the leadership of Jeroboam were not intimidated. They withdrew, refusing to participate in the anointing of Rehoboam as their king. Only the representatives of two tribes, Judah and Benjamin, remained loyal to Rehoboam. Thus the kingdom of Israel was divided. Thereafter, the ten tribes maintained the title Kingdom of Israel, and the two tribes were called the Kingdom of Judah, for over five hundred years—until the return from Babylonian captivity, so many of all Israel as had respect to the Divine promises.

Since the captivity the name Israel stood for the entire twelve tribes, as at first, being so used by Jesus and the Apostles; and the name Jews was similarly used for all in covenant relationship with God. The great majority never returned but continued to live in the various provinces of Babylon. Some of them, rejecting circumcision and dropping faith in God, were disowned of God and thus became like the remainder of the Gentile world. But others of them, remaining loyal to the Lord, and going to Jerusalem annually at the feast, as directed by God's Word, continued to be known as members of "the twelve tribes scattered abroad." Many of these were brought in contact with the Truth in the days of the Apostles.

The Twentieth Century Church

Back over a span of centuries we find a period when church and state were inseparably linked. Wayside shrines received man's devotions as he fared on his journey. Crosses erected along the roadside constantly reminded the people of the sacrifice of the world's Savior. Every state and national ceremony was attended by the impressive services of God's emissaries.

Religion went hand in hand with man's daily life. The scientific invasion of the past few centuries has driven us away from the church. One generally hears it expressed in the opposite way; we would rather console ourselves by saying that the church has not kept peace with us, or perhaps, the church has changed.

But the deep, undeniable truth is, the people are not in accord with the church today. The church stands for the same principles today as she did centuries ago. Her one great doctrine is salvation and redemption for man through the Living Christ. Lack of time, press of business, interest in other affairs—all of them common enough, are the excuses we offer for absenting ourselves from church services. Excuses, mere excuses, every one of them.

There isn't a man living who doesn't want to see a better world—a higher moral and social standard. But we deliberately neglect the church. And the church is the most powerful factor in raising these standards.

What is your attitude? The best way that you can become acquainted and thoroughly familiar with the work of the church is that you
