TWO PENTECOSTS TWO SALVATIONS

The Holy Spirit to Be Poured Out Upon All Flesh.

Divine Plan Provides Two Distinct Salvations—The First Pentecost—Its Blessings For the Church Exclusively, Its Work Nearly Completed—The Second Pentecost—Its Blessings For Mankind in General, Through the Long-Promised Messianic Kingdom.

PASTOR RUSSELL

San Antonio, Texas, May 23.—Pastor Russell spoke here today from the text, "It shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh."—Joel 2:28. The Pastor demonstrated from his context that the Prophet Joel mentions two distinct outpourings of the Holy Spirit, one fulfilled at Pentecost more than eighteen centuries ago, the other still future. St. Peter's explanation of the first Pentecostal blessing (Acts 2:16) should not be taken to mean that what was witnessed in the upper room shortly after our Lord's ascension completely fulfilled this prophecy. No Bible student would dispute that the fulfillment began there and has continued ever since. It is as true today as with the early Church, that the blessing of the Holy Spirit is granted to all God's servants and handmaidens. The remainder of the prophecy will be fulfilled in due time.

After these days of the Gospel Age will come the glorious epoch of Messiah's Kingdom, through which God will pour out upon all mankind a great blessing of enlightenment and uplift from sin and death conditions. To the accomplishment of this end Satan shall be bound for a thousand years; and the darkness which now covers the earth will disappear.—Isaiah 60:2; Malachi 4:2; Habakkuk 2:14.

Abraham's Spiritual Seed First. Abraham of old, the Pastor explained, typified Jehovah, and Isaac typified Messiah, born by a special Divine interposition, according to God's promise. Of this antitypical Isaac class Jesus is the Head, the Church's Forerunner as well as the world's Redeemer. The Body of the Messiah is composed of a scanty few, gathered primarily from amongst the Jews, but being completed by additions from all nations. These will all be character-copies of God's dear Son. This is Divine predestination, according to St. Paul—Romans 8:29, 30; Galatians 4:28; 3:8, 16, 29.

This Spiritual Seed of Abraham will constitute the Church of the Firstborn antitypes of the priests and the Levites of the Jewish Dispensation. With the completion of this Church, gathered out of all nations and denominations, Divine favor will again return to the natural seed of Abraham. As the Jew was granted the first opportunity of becoming the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, he will likewise have the first opportunity of participating in the blessing which will come upon all mankind. See Romans 11:25-29.

Here God foretells that Israel shall be the first to be blessed by Messiah: "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob." Zion is pictured as a mother whose offspring is the Messiah. Looking again at the type we see that Abraham and Sarah represent Jehovah and the great Covenant through which Messiah was to be developed. It has required more than eighteen centuries to give birth to this great Deliverer. Jesus was the Head; and the Church of the Gospel Age will be the Body. The First Resurrection will bring all those sons of God to the plane of glory, honor and immortality—born from the dead. Then the Deliverer will begin His work of blessing all nations.

"My Spirit Upon All Flesh." The Pastor then pointed out a similarity as well as a difference between the two Pentecostal blessings. According to St. Peter (Acts 2:33), the glorified Jesus received the Holy Spirit from the Father and poured it out upon the early Church at the first Pentecost. The later blessing will come through the great Messiah as a result of the satisfaction which He will make for the sins of the whole world by applying to the race the merits of His sacrifice. By this He will seal the New Law Covenant with Israel, and then with the world through Israel. (Jeremiah 31:31-34). Messiah will be the Mediator of that New Covenant, which will be based upon the "better sacrifices" offered by Him, as the antitypical High Priest.—Hebrews 9:19-23.

The world's Pentecostal blessing will not be upon the terms of their sacrificing their earthly rights to attain Heavenly blessings and spiritual sonship. Its requirements will be consecration to obedience of the Divine Law; and its reward will be restitution to perfection of human nature and to all the blessings originally given to Adam, but forfeited by his disobedience. This opportunity will be afforded every human being desirous of coming into accord with God. After all rejectors of God's grace shall have been destroyed in the Second Death, mankind will constitute the promised "seed of Abraham," whose number shall be as the sands of the seashore, even as the spirit-begotten ones of this Gospel Age are likened to the stars of heaven.

THOMAS GIVENS IS KILLED UNDER AUTO. Wallace, Idaho, May 23.—Thomas Givens, aged about 50, was instantly killed here last night, when an automobile bus turned turtle about four miles east of this city, plunging Givens under the wrecked car, breaking his neck.

Givens had resided in the Coeur d'Alene district for several years and followed mining. He was reticent about his life previously to coming here, but intimated at times to close friends that he formerly lived in Chicago, where he conducted a prominent saloon and became involved in a shooting affray, which left him stranded, and he abandoned his business and came west.

He was married there and it is thought his family still resides in Chicago. The body is held at the Ward undertaking parlors, where an inquest will be held tomorrow. At the time of his death Givens was interested in a valuable group of mining claims near this city.

department officials will be surprised if it is not couched in friendly terms, but, at the same time, they expect it to raise some difficult diplomatic questions. From advices that have been received it is now understood that Germany will endeavor to place upon the United States indirect responsibility for the extent of Germany's submarine warfare and the complained-of consequences. An attempt will be made to show that the sinking of the Lusitania was in a way forced upon Germany by what Germany will claim is the unbecoming attitude of American neutrality. The German argument, according to information obtained from well-informed sources, will be this: Germany will grant that the United States has a right under international law to sell munitions of war to such belligerents as are in a position to buy. Alleged Unfriendliness. But Germany will contend that when Germany was put in a position where she was unable to contract for the delivery of munitions to German ports it was unwarranted on the part of the United States not to be satisfied with furnishing munitions to Germany's enemies up to the normal capacity of the arms and munitions industries of the United States, but not to run these industries night and day and even build up expensive new industries. Germany will also contend that if Great Britain had a right to draw on the United States for arms and ammunition Germany also had a right to draw on the United States for foodstuffs and under international law was entitled to receive them at every German port around which a blockade had not been established by Germany's enemies. The right of the United States to ship foodstuffs to Germany and the right of Germany to have them delivered where no effective blockade had been established, in accordance with the precepts of international law, Germany will contend, has been interfered with and practically nullified by the action of Great Britain in closing the North sea to neutral commerce by a blockade of the English channel. Futile Protest. It will be pointed out that the United States protested against this unlawful course of Great Britain, but has been powerless to have its protest heeded. As Germany was not in a position to enforce its rights with regard to the shipment of foodstuffs from the United States to Germany and as the United States did not enforce its right to make and deliver such shipments the German note will argue that Germany was justified in taking whatever means she could command to enforce her rights. She will plead the law of self-defense and argue that the United States is partly responsible for the harm that has come to neutrals by failing to maintain neutral rights as against the arbitrary action of Great Britain and thereby permitting a condition that threatened death by starvation to a large part of the civilian population of Germany. Another contention which it is understood Germany will certainly make is that the United States had permitted the shipment of munitions of war from the United States on passenger boats, especially the passenger vessels of a belligerent, and then permitted American citizens to go aboard such vessels. Germany will contend that such action on the part of this country is merely permitting American citizens to serve as a shield for the shipment of death-dealing contraband. These are the contentions that department officials are now preparing to meet in anticipation of their being made in the German note. A wonderful, thrilling drama "The Cup of Life," last time tonight. The Ogden.

INK-BLACK SMOKE AT LASSEN PEAK

Redding, Cal., May 23.—Lassen peak poured out another large eruption of ink-black smoke this evening, it was reported by returning automobile parties late tonight. They said a rift in the rain clouds when they were at Viola had shown billows of smoke ascending to a considerable height. No reports of a new eruption came from the Hat Creek district, and it is believed that the residents near the danger zone were aware of the renewed activity of the crater.

Redding, Cal., May 23.—The torrent of mud and volcanic substance from the crater of Lassen peak was diverted in its furious rush today into old lava fields, and the lower part of the fertile Hat Creek valley was temporarily saved from the threatening flood.

There were no eruptions today, but in spite of the lull in Lassen's activity, a feeling of terror prevailed throughout the danger zone, and more than 100 refugees refused to return to their homes.

Ranchers took advantage of the mountain's somnolence to return to their fields and drive their stock off to the highlands. Fifty refugees were camped at Cassel, waiting for provisions before seeking a securer haven on higher ridges.

Hope that the mud floods would fertilize their lands was abandoned today when the black substance hardened almost to the solidity of cement. It lies over the farms and meadows from two to four feet deep, and it is feared that the soil can never be recovered.

Hat Creek Dried Up.

The latest new development in threatened danger arose from the drying up of Hat creek. It was dry today for the first time known. Reports came in that the volcanic mud had dammed the stream near its headwaters in a narrow canyon, impounding a great body of water. Fear of a break in this dam and a consequent flood that would inundate the whole valley under many feet of water, added to the terrifying prospect of new destruction from the mountain's crater.

Before the stream suddenly ran dry its waters were chalky white with volcanic ash and scalding hot. All its fish were killed and cast up over the flooded area before the creek subsided.

Anxious eyes were bent all today toward the peak of the mountain. Rain clouds hid its crest a great part of the day, though occasionally inky black clouds rolled into view. Keen attention was centered on the peak around 4 o'clock, the hour at which most of the recent eruptions have exploded. Tension was relieved when daylight faded without a new outburst.

Exodus Continues.

Late reports from the Hat Creek district tonight were that the exodus to the hills was continuing and only a few of the more daring had returned to gather up livestock and salvage a few treasured domestic articles.

Many said they never expected to re-establish themselves in their old homes. Refugees were being cared for tonight in houses, barns and stores outside the endangered district. Many camped out in tents and some slept roofless under the stars.

Residents of Montgomery Creek, who had a clear view of yesterday's stupendous eruption, reported today that rocks and boulders were flung hundreds of feet into the air. This weighty ejecta wrecked the forest service bureau station at Twin Bridges. Hot pumice also was thrown out by the explosion.

Lassen peak could not be distinguished from here tonight, rain falling heavily as it has fallen after each of the recent eruptions.

Some Move Back.

Residents of Hat Creek valley began moving back today into their homes, from which the volcano had driven them twice within forty-eight hours. The activity of the peak, which has been humorously regarded and commented upon throughout the state as being merely another attraction for tourists, was sober business for these folks. When they found that the tremendous flood of mud which poured down the mountainside had been deflected from the creek valley into ancient lava fields, thereby saving their homes, some of them looked upon the occurrence as providential and held services of praise and thanksgiving. Their anxiety, however, was plainly manifest as the afternoon hours went by. They were waiting for 4 o'clock, the hour at which the volcano generally goes into eruption.

The smoke cloud of last night's eruption rose five miles and was three miles across at the top, according to estimates made by a local civil engineer and based on the distance to the mountain and its known altitude. The flash of the explosion, its tremendous power and the detonation which accompanied it were like those of a siege gun incredibly magnified.

NORWEGIAN SHIP IS SENT DOWN

London, May 23.—The Norwegian steamer Minerva, of 500 tons, bound from America to Norway with provisions, has been torpedoed off the Farne islands.

The Norwegian steamer Iris stood by and was taking the passengers and crew off the Minerva when the periscope of a submarine appeared simultaneously with the launching of a torpedo, which passed below the hull of the Iris. The Iris steamed away at full speed and escaped. Including the passengers and crew she had eighty persons on board.

The Belgian relief steamer Comero, bound from Rotterdam to New York, narrowly escaped being torpedoed off the coast of Holland. A German submarine passed within forty yards of the Comero, fired a torpedo, which went wide, and then disappeared.

London, May 24, 2:08 a. m.—Reuter's Stockholm correspondent telegraphs that the Swedish steamer Hornodla Sunday morning, east of the Soderhamn pilot station, struck an anchored mine and sank in six minutes. Her crew of twenty-two men was saved.

ASHES FROM LASSEN FALL ON W. P. TRAIN

Salt Lake, May 24.—For two hours in the night the Western Pacific's Scenic Limited, which arrived in Salt Lake City yesterday afternoon, sped along amid a shower of volcanic ashes from the eruption of Lassen peak. In northern California.

Accompanying the fall of ashes on the train, which was nearly 100 miles from the volcano, were gaseous odors. Although the travelers were in this zone for about two hours, no damage was done to the train and no harm came to the passengers. It was as if the train were passing through an exceedingly long tunnel.

At daylight yesterday morning, when the train was well into Nevada, the cars were seen to be literally covered with the volcanic ash. Some had sifted into the cars, the porters sweeping up as much as a bucketful from each car.

The train encountered the fog of ashes about midnight Saturday. The passengers who were awake sniffed the gaseous odors and looking out, thought they were in a tunnel. Other passengers slept through all of it and did not learn of their experience until yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Francis of Hallen, Okla., who are stopping off at Salt Lake City, and are registered at the Kenyon hotel, were passengers on the train. Likewise were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Muir of St. Joseph, Mo., who are also stopping at the Kenyon. Mr. Francis was awake when the train ran into the volcanic ash belt. He said:

"Several men on the train were up, and along about midnight one of us remarked that the train seemed to be in an unusually long and smelly tunnel. The train kept on going minutes after minutes, and still we seemed to be in this tunnel. We looked out the window and couldn't see anything, yet something seemed to be sifting against the windows.

"The gas odors continued and we thought we would investigate. On the platforms we could see no more of outdoors than we could through the windows. We asked the conductor what we were running into and he told us the train was in a fog of ashes from the Lassen volcano. The ashes sifted on the track and made running slow, but we made up whatever time was lost after getting out of the ashes, which was about 2 o'clock this morning. The ashes had been falling on the train for two hours. In the morning the train was still covered with ashes, although we had left the shower way behind. The porters swept bucketfuls out of each car. It was quite an unusual experience, but no one suffered any inconvenience."
